The detachment of the 5th New York heavy artillery planted their guns on the highest summit of Wheeling Hill, from which point they fired the salutes of the day, which were heard far back in the interior on both sides of the river. The military was the first organization to arrive on the ground, and formed on Fourth street above Monroe, and consisted of detachments of the Thirty-fourth and Twenty-eighth Ohio, and a battalion of the Veteran Reserve Corps. The Thirty-fourth was companied by large numbers from the country. Two fine bands of music accompanied them from the city. The services consisted of the reading of the Declaration by the M. W.
